sides to be considered in the administration of city government. One is the purse of the people and the other the life of the people. Tammany Hall had an opportunity to establish small parks, but it did not do it. Tammany Hall had the opportunity to build enough schools, but it did not do it. It had the chance to build recreation piers for the benefit of the people, but it did not do it. Now Tammany Hall is boasting that it had a low tax rate. So could any administration if it did not do the things that needed to be done. An administration must think of the life of the people. But Tammany Hall has never heelstated to spend money where it would do Tammany good. (Laughter.) And what Tammany has done Tammany will do.

THE SAME OLD TAMMANY.

We must judge of the Tammany of the future by the Tammany of the past. In this campaign there are two conflicting ideas. We hold that if you want the work of the city well done we must select a man who will have nothing to do but choose hon man who will have nothing to do but choose honest, capable men for the different departments, and then see that their work is honestly and well performed. The other idea is that the people must elect their officials with a view to accomplishing something outside of the city, as, for example, the indorsement or Free Trade or Protection. If you take the latter view you mustn't expect to have a high order of government. No successful business was ever carried on in that way.

Mr. Low proceeded to decrease the protection

Mr. Low proceeded to denounce the principle of one-man power by which the Republican and Democratic candidates had been nominated, and declared that if the voters were not to have a voice in the nomination as well as the election of candidates then popular government would become but a name, and that, if the Citizens Union candidates were elected, in the future the people would be consulted about nominations. In closing, Mr. Low dwelt upon the fact that a man responsible for his success to a party would find it almost impossible to resist the pressure of that party for rewards, while a man nominated as he had been would be responsible only to the people and free from all obligations but the one of serving the city well. "If you want men who are bound to other responsibilities than the city's interests you can have them, but if you want men whose only obligation is to you, then work and vote for the candidates of the Citizens Union." Mr. Low's address was constantly interrupted by cheers, and its close was followed by a demonstration like that which greeted his en-The crowd that could not get into the hall held an overflow meeting outside. THE LAST MEETING.

Mr. Low's third and last engagement for the evening was at Gramercy Lyceum, in West Twenty-third-st., where he addressed an enthusiastic audience which packed the large hall thusiastic audience which packed the large hall and which included many women. This meeting, which was held under the nanagement of the Citizens Union Association of the IXth and XXVth Assembly districts, was called to order by Henry D. Sedgwick, Jr., chairman of the XXVth District, who, after urging all who had not registered to do it to-day, introduced the first speaker, John De Witt Warner. Mr. Warner said, by way of introduction, that he would like to supplement the chairman's suggestion by asking those who had already registered to devote to-day to inducing as many as possible of their friends to perform the same duty. The present campaign, he went on to say, was one of the most extreme importance. New-York had an assured place as the metropolis of the United States, and to it probably would in the future pass the commercial supremacy of the world. The citizens of the Greater New-York must decide whether its prospects should be helped or marred by what they should do at the coming election.

The issue might be put in two ways: The real issue was, though, whether the government of this city should be directed from the City Hall or from the United States Express Company's office, a few blocks below; or from Tammany Hall. If Tammany should win, it would be the fault of the people themselves; they would deserve their fale. To start off with the little things in this campaign, the speaker went on, "there's the Tracy canvass." (Laughter). One of the candidates was Platt's mask, Tracy; another was Croker's jumpingjack, Van Wyck; the third was Seth Low, (Loud applause). After reviewing Mr. Platt's course in relation to negotiations with the Citizens Frederic Adams, asserting that the cimnatures in county after county to the nomination of Charles Frederic Adams, asserting that the cimnatures in county after county to the nomination of Charles Frederic Adams, asserting that the signatures in the main those of Plate Republicans. were in the main those of Flatt Republicans, "put up by Platt for a free silver candidate, in order to bedevil the political campaign." Then he described the change from the eld-time Legislature-buying at Albany to the taking of toll from the corporations by Croker at Tammany Hall, and told of Croker's blossoming out as a capitalist and his departure for Europe when the chorus of "Where did you get it?" became too loud and persistent to be longer endured by him, and of his career as a "sport" in England.

VAN WYCK'S CANDIDACY.

Van Wyck, he charged, was picked as a candidate by Croker in pursuance of a bargain with the Metropolitan Traction Company, "which he came over here to blackmail," as his most serviceable errand boy, and he dealt briefly with Gardiner and the unknown Coler and the rest of the "dummy ticket." At this point a large delegation from the IXth Assembly District. headed by a band, entered the hall, which by this time was crowded. Hesuming, Mr. Warner arraigned Tammany for various derelictions, and then referred to the third of the candidates opposing Mr. Low-Henry George, for whose honesty he professed admiration, but who in the opposing Mr. Low-Hein's George, for whose honesty he professed admiration, but who in the speaker's opinion was a "prophet of humanity," whereas the present emergency demanded the election as Mayor of a practical, cool-headed business man, if the people were to get all they were entitled under the new charter to have. Short speeches were made by Edward F. Mc-Sweeney, Citizens Union candidate for Sheriff; P. Tecumseh Sherman, candidate for Sheriff; P. Tecumseh Sherman, candidate for Alderman in the district; Robert Miller, a candidate for Councilman, and Bioa L. Burrows, Mayor Strong's private secretary. While Mr. Burrows was speaking the sound of music at the far end of the hall was heard, and the big audience turned to cheer and cheer again Seth Low as he advanced up the centre aisle to the platform. Mr. Low's introduction by Chairman Sedgwick was brief. "Here he is." Mr. Low, in opening, said he brought good news from the north, having just come from two meetings which were as large and nearly as enthusiastic as was having just come from two meetings which were as large and nearly as enthusiastic as was this. Then he entered at once upon the discussion of the issues. He was contending, he asserted, for the very substance of home rule. Home rule on the statute books might become a dead letter; graven on the hearts of the people, it was a living and vital thing. He asked his hearers to vote for the election of candidates who came pledged to one thing—to serve the city well.

The Citizens Union candidates were not asked to build up an organization by appointments

The Citizens Union candidates were not asked to build up an organization by appointments and at the same time do their best for all the people. That thought lay at the very foundation of good city government. It was just as demoralizing to choose city officers for what they might think about the tariff or free trade as it would be to conduct a private business in that way. The Citizens Union was not the inventor of that idea, which had impressed itself upon observers in all parts of the country. The State of New-York, however, had recognized it in its amended constitution by separating municipal from State and National elections for the express purpose of saying to the people of the citles that local affairs should no longer be secondary to State and National affairs. Every secondary to State and National affairs. Every other ticket than that of the Citizens Union was concerned with State and National issues, "unless the fact that Tammany has confined itself to local issues," remarked the speaker, "compels me to make an exception there." (Laughter.) But he suspected that Tammany was thinking of itself first, second and all the time, and that the city would be a good mouthful for Tammany Hall.

This year, Mr. Low continued, the people had a chance, if they exerted themselves, to elect men who had no obligation whatever except the direct one which they would owe to the people of the city. (Applause.) That was the first issue. The second was that candidates who were free when they were nominated were better situated than those who owed their nomination to organizations which have become simple machines in the hands of one man. There was one-man power in its absolute form. The Czar's power in some ways was not as absolute as the Boss's. How interesting it would be to learn the Tammany candidate's views on various subjects affecting the city, which that gentleman discussed with eloquent silence. A strong personality in public office was not necessarily unable to resist pressure, but he would have to resist it continuously—a wearing process. And it was doubly hard when the pressure was exerted by all the power of a contpact organization urging a man to swerve from the path of duty. The Citizens Union candidates acknowledged fealty to nobody except the citizens, whom they were elected to serve. In Brooklyn the other day, Mr. Low went on, a speaker said he thought the Roenigen ray must have been employed in selecting Low as a candidate. Mr. Low didn't himself know what it would have shown, but he hoped it would have shown at the very least that he had a backbone. (Applause.) Some people were in doubt as to the arch-enemy of good government in this campaign. Mr. Low believed it to be Tammany, and he closed his address with a vigorous presentation of Tammany's sins of omission and commission.

AT CITIZENS UNION HEADQUARTERS. CALLERS ON MR. LOW-CHEERING REPORTS

FROM THE DISTRICTS. who are conducting the campaign at the hendquarters of the Citizens Union have begun to figure on the result. Of course, these figures are pretty vague as yet, and for this reason John C. Clark, who is one of the tabulators, will not make them public. They are based, to a certain extent, upon reports from districts, and as time goes on more accurate and careful data will be compiled, but a most satisfactory report is given at the present time. The distinct gains that Mr. Low has made within the last few days have given an impetus to the district leaders throughout the city, and they are going to work with redoubled energy. The Low canvass can now be said to be as thoroughly organized as any other, with a number of nightly meetings equal to that of any of the other organizations. Mr. Low himself is a stalwart worker, and gives up all his time to the campaign. His visits to headquarters are inspiring, and the amount of work he wades through is surprising. He proposes to continue at it until Election Day. When he arrived at headquarters at 3 oclock yesterday afternoon he was cheerful, and explained that the Brooklyn meeting was most satisfactory, and he thinks his former city will roll up a big majority against the bosses. General McCook and other members of Mr. Low's Campaign Committee are not at all worried over the plan of the Republican organization to flood the city with Republican speakers from outside. They believe that Secretary Bliss's letter will prove a boomerang, and the registrate the introduction of outsiders has hurt General Tracy's campaign has proved to their satisfaction that the deduction they made was correct.

AFTER GARDINER'S SCALP.

STREET CLEANING OFFICIALS AROUSED OVER HIS REMARKS ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT.

Colonel Waring, Captain Gibson and other offi-cers of the Street Cleaning Department were talk-ing yesterday about having Colonel Asa Bird Garding. Tammany Hall candidate for District-Attor-ncy, and a retired officer of the Army, court-mar-tialed for saying, at a public meeting on the evening of October 13: "Gentlemen, when anybody speaks to you about clean streets under the reform administration, you tell them that I told you that they have been stealing about a million a year in

Colonel Gardiner denied in an interview printed yesterday that he had made use of the language to which the Street Cleaning Department takes umbrage. But Colonel Waring was not satisfied with this denial, apparently. He published a circular letter, in which he quotes a letter sent on Thursday by Captain Gibson, Deputy Commisstoner, to Colonel Gardiner, asking if he had said that the Street Cleaning Department was stealing 1,000,000 a year. Colonel Waring then quotes from a letter to himself from Captain Gibson. The latter, who is also a retired officer of the Army, wrote yesterday to his superior as follows:

yesterday to his superior as follows:
Yesterday, to save time. I sent my letter to Major Gardiner by messenger. The reply came back that Major Gardiner was too busy just then to reply. I afterward sent twice to his office, with no better result, and this morning I sent again. I have yet to receive a written reply to my query, which, as Major Gardiner knows, I desire to make public with my own letter.
My own responsibility for any possible stealing

Cantain Gibson save "Major" Gardiner, because

Captain Gibson says "Major" Gardiner, because Mr. Gardiner was retired as major in the Judge-Advocate's Department, and not as colonel, which was his brevet rank. Colonel Waring also includes a letter received by him from Major H. C. Cushing, another retired officer of the Army, who is Assistant Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, as follows:

Referring to certain remarks alleged to have been made in a speech last night by Colonel Assa Bird Gardiner, as reported in this morning's "World," in which he attacks this Department, I have this to say: Some few months ago, I met Colonel Gardiner on a Broadway cable-car, During our conversation, which was on various topics, I remarked that I supposed, if Tammany Hall should come into power and control the Greater New-York, that we, i. e., the present administration of the Street Cleaning Department, would have to get out. Colonel Gardiner said he did not think so—that the Department had been a great success. He was quite eulogistic about it. I cannot recan his exact words, but his epinion was so directly contrary to what he is reported to have said last night that I was surprised when I read his speech this morning.

Another of Colonel Waring's subordinates, Thomas A. Doe, chief clerk of the Department, wrote to ent of the Street Cleaning Department, as follows:

Doe, chief clerk of the Department, wrote to

A. Doe, chief clerk of the Department, wrote to the Colonel thus:

If the report of Colonel Gardiner in "The World" is true, then Colonel Gardiner is so many kinds of a liar that I hardly know where to begin in describing him. If he made the statements referring to this Department accredited to him, he is unqualifiedly a dangerous liar, a malicious liar, a vicious liar, an unmitigated liar, an ungentlemanty and profane liar, a discredit to the Army, a discredit to the party which he pretends to represent, a discredit to humanity and to the civilized age in which he lives, a discredit to all instincts of an officer and gentleman which belong to the honored healy of which he is a member, and, were it not that I feel that I should take no action without your full approval, I should myself, because (as intimated above) I feel personally concerned in the matter and personally offended and insuited and my integrity brought into question, state to him that he is a liar, in the very strongest language I could command. I should be glad to have your permission to act freely in the matter.

cour permission to act freely in the matter.

Colonel Waring ends his circular as follows:

volt, and most of Mr. O'Brien's supporters, anxious as they are for a job, will fall into line for George as the only medium of access to the ple counter. A meeting was held by the United Democracy last night in the Central Opera House, in Sixtyseventh-st. About three hundred people, over half of whom cheered for Henry George every time his name was mentioned, were present. James A. Edmonds was the chairman. He said the meeting was called for the purpose of ratifying the nomination of Alfred B. Cruikshank, named in place of Henry George. He talked principally about Tom L. Johnson and the men who induced Mr. George to pull off the United Democracy ticket.

"George is honest," he said, "but in his sim-plicity he has allowed them to pull his leg. They have destroyed all chance of his election, which looked so bright a few days ago."

James A. Gray, the next speaker, denounced

George as a traitor. This was met with cries of protest, and a laundryman from Sixty-seventh-st. might have stampeded the meeting to Mr. George if the police had not squeiched him.

When order was restored ex-Sheriff James O'Brien took the floor. He was hoarse, and in the course of his remarks said he had not been himself since Tom L. Johnson began to make deals. "It looked like a sure victory when I had George nominated," he said. "But along comes Tom Johnson, the bloated plutocrat from Ohio, and he joilles poor George into giving him the reins. That fixed George It George had given me my way, we would have won by seventy-five thousand plurality. "Why, my friends, I had Tammany Hall on its knees. Every day they were after me trying to make a deal, but I would not have it. But all is lost now. I am sick and disgusted and out of it for good. I won't ask my friends to vote against George. I have already asked too many of them to vote for him. Vote as you please. But when Tammany Hall and Crokerism again raise their heads on high let Henry George take the responsibility to himself. Let him nurse the bitter memory for the rest of his years. I forgive him, for he knew not what he did. My friends, I am done. Good-night."

This ended the meeting, and the crowd filed slowly out, much as if they were to fall in line benind a corpse without. Outside a little noise was created by the Henry George sympathizers, led by the laundryman. the bloated plutocrat from Ohio, and he jollies poor

"AGHT" FROM CONGRESSMAN SULZER. HE AIRS HIS VIEWS ON THE STRONG ADMINIS-TRATION BEFORE THE MANHATTAN

The regular meeting of the Manhattan Liberal Club last night, at No. 220 East Fifteenth-st., was addressed by Congressman William Sulzer on "The Issues of the Hour." Mr. Sulzer told why he chose the Tammany ticket from among the others. He admitted that Mayor Strong was an honest man and meant to do well, but said that his principal shortcoming was his "lack of bureaucracy matters and details." He declared the Strong administration to be a failure, and that the only redeem-ing feature of it is the work done by the Street Cleaning Department, regarding which any other man than Colonel Waring with a like man than Colonel Waring with a like sum of money could have done as well and better. He further declared that Mayor Strong was now with-out political friends. Then Mr. Suizer talked about laxes assessed on "the poor man's home." He wound up his address by remarking that the city had been placed under "the iron despotism of agri-cultural dictation."

GEORGE TICKET STANDS IN RICHMOND.

County Clerk John Elsworth, of Richmond County, has refused to throw out the Henry George ticket in Richmond, on the grounds taken in the protest filed against its being printed on the ballot by Augustus Acker, the Tammany nomines for Sheriff of the county.

THE MAYORALTY SITUATION.

THE BEST RESULT FOR NEW-YORK. From The Portland Oregonian, The best result that could be had in New-York would be the election of Low.

PLATT'S HOPELESS MINORITY.

When General Tracy was nominated for Mayor by the Platt Republicans, it looked as if Tammany was sure of a comparatively easy victory, owing to the division of the Republicans. But the outlook for Seth Low has improved since then. On the one hand it is pretty plain that the Platt ticket will be supported by only a minority of the Republicans of Greater New-York—the Independent Republican or Brookheld organization, which includes Mayor Strong and many friends of General Tracy having declared against the latter and for Mr. Low. On the other hand, some strong bemocratic factions have joined the Low column, among them being the "Ship" Democracy, so called, which helped the Republicans of Brooklyn to assault the McLaughlin ring; the powerful German-American Reform Union, which has twice decided a municipal contest in New-York, the Purroy Democracy, which includes the anti-Tammany elements of the Borough of the Bronx; and the Grace Democracy, the strongest rival of Tammany in the Democratic party of New-York. TOO LATE FOR RETIREMENT.

Since Mr. Low is a Republican and is acceptable to almost every class of Republicans, it is fair to think he would get the vast majority of the votes that will be cast for Tracy if the latter remains in the field. The duty of the hour is to secure the retirement of Mr. Platt's straw nominee. PUT AN INJUNCTION ON PLATT.

From The Philadelphia Telegraph.

From The Philadelphia Telegraph.

The main contest, as everybody can plainly perceive, is between Judge Van Wyck, the Tammany candidate, and Seth Low, the nominee of the Clizens Union, with Henry George, the social revolutionist, running as a close third, though recently suffering a severe check in the race because of dissensions among his supporters. After these come Gleason and one or two others, and then General Tracy is seen tagging along in the rear, without the remotest hope or expectation of reaching even the quarter post on the way around the course. This is what Senator Platt is doing to preserve the integrity, the influence and prestige, of the Republican party in New-York. If right-minded Republicans throughout the country who have the honor and the welfare of the Grand Old Party at heart could put an injunction on Boss Platt, there cannot be a moment's question but what they would stop this humiliating exhibition by which the organization in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State is made to serve as a foil for Tammany Hall, and in default of the power to redeem the party in the Empire State from this shameful thraidom, loyal Republicans everywhere should protest against this misuse of a local machine in the name of the National organization as degrading and dangerous to an extent warranting active interference.

A CAMPAIGN AGAINST PLUNDERERS.

From The Boston Herald.

The movement under the auspices of the Citizens Union is an attempt on the part of the people to rescue the city from the grasp of plunderers. It appeals to every honest man in the fact that it is an essay to give the city honest government. There is necessarily implied in this a crusade against corrupt polities. A battle is being fought out in the greatest city of the Union between the forces of honesty and purity in government on the one hand and those of dishonesty and corruption on the other. The whole Nation is looking on to see it. What wonder that there should be an interest in its result that transcends all other political interest of the year? It is our battle as well as theirs, it is the battle of New-England, of the West and of the South, of the American people. These New-York leaders in corruption are the representative men of corruption everywhere. They are contending for dishonesty and impurity in politics everywhere. The basis of their strength is in a system of hoss-ship in politics by which they stifle the fair expression of the people through the agency of organizations in which they have the mastery.

A TYRANNOUS PARTY MACHINE.

A TYRANNOUS PARTY MACHINE.

From The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

So much is at stake in the election of the first Mayor of Greater New-York, and the issue of independent municipal politics against machine rule and general politics, has been so clearly made in the Low candidacy, that the result will be taken as indicative of future conditions. The defeat of the tyrannous party machine in New-York would be an inspiring example for American cities. FAVORABLE TO LOW'S ELECTION.

From The Boston Herald.

From The Boston Herald.

We believe that the prospect is favorable to Seth Low's election. We base this opinion upon the confidence we have that the better part of Platt's followers, in view of the clearness of the demonstration that Platt, with his ostensibly Republican ticket, is working for the success of Tammany Halt, will leave him and rally by thousands to the standard of Seth Low. It is in their power in this way to defeat Tammany, and Tammany, it is now made plain, can be defeated in no other way.

WHO WILL BRING UP THE REAR? From The Sloux City Journal.

It is still a question in New-York City whether Henry George or Judge Van Wyck will lead in the scattering column of the returns.

A BLAZE IN COLUMBIA'S GROUNDS.

A fire which occurred in a blacksmith's shop it the grounds of Columbia College, at One-hundredand-nineteenth-st, and the Boulevard, last night was more exciting and brilliant than any that could have originated by any of the undergrad-uates. The shop is a large wooden structure in which the tools used in the college improvements are sharpened and repaired. It is the property of John Hooper, the contractor. Last night, while James Walsh was in the place working over a lamp, a five-gallon can of naphtha became ignited and exploded. Walsh narrowly escaped being imprisoned in the place and burned to death. The door was kicked in and he was released. The building was destroyed.

Traffic on the Boulevard was delayed half an hour by the Fire Department stretching hose across the cartracks.
